

Assisted Living Community (ALC) Medication Aide Frequently Asked Questions

1. What is the Georgia ALC Medication Aide Registry?

The Georgia ALC Medication Aide Registry is the web-based system for listing unlicensed persons who have qualified to administer certain medications in assisted living communities (ALCs) as permitted by Georgia law, O.C.G.A. §31-7-12.2 . This Registry is operated by the Alliant Health Solutions on behalf of the Department of Community Health (DCH).

2. Who may be listed on the Georgia ALC Medication Aide Registry?

Only Georgia-Certified Nurse Aides (CNAs) in good standing who successfully complete the Georgia Medication Aide Training Program may be listed on the Georgia ALC Medication Aide Registry.

3. What are the requirements to become a Georgia ALC Medication Aide?

A CNA, on the Georgia Certified Nurse Aide Registry who is ACTIVE with no findings of abuse, neglect or misappropriation, is eligible to take the standardized ALC medication aide training program. The ALC Medication Aide Training Program must be administered by a Georgia licensed registered nurse, pharmacist or physician utilizing the standardized medication aide training curriculum. The CNA must successfully complete the ALC Medication Aide Training Program, which includes the completion of the required skills checklist and take a standardized written state competency examination. The written state competency exam must be passed with a minimum score of 80 percent. The CNA will have up to three times to pass the state standardized written competency examination within 90 days before having to retake the entire ALC Medication Aide Training program again.

4. Where can I take the Medication Aide Program?

Many ALCs, using the services of a licensed physician, registered nurse or pharmacist to teach the class, are expected to offer the approved training curriculum necessary for you to qualify to take the test to be listed on the ALC Medication Aide Registry. A list of physicians, registered nurses and pharmacists, who have registered to administer the Medication Aide Training Curriculum, is on the website at www.mmis.georgia.gov.

5. Does a certified nursing assistant wanting to take the certified medication aide course have to work at an assisted living community at the time they take the certified medication aide training?

No. It is possible that a certified nurse aide could take the certified medication aide training class without having a job in an assisted living community at the time that certification as a medication aide is obtained. Remember though, that the completion of skills competency checklist must be done by the aide in a setting where the residents require medication administration, etc. Also, please remember the only place that a certified medication aide is authorized to function as a certified medication aide is in an assisted living community

6. Can a registered nurse, pharmacist or physician train nurse aides without being approved as a Georgia Certified Medication Aide instructor?

No. The registered nurse, pharmacist or physician must be active in good standing on the Georgia Secretary of State Board of Nursing, Georgia Board of Pharmacy or Georgia Composite Medical Board. The nurse aide's name will not appear on the CMA registry if the instructor is not approved as a CMA instructor. A list of physicians, registered nurses and pharmacists, who have registered to administer the Medication Aide Training Curriculum, is on the website at www.mmis.georgia.gov.

7. Where do I take the written examination?

State medication aide written examinations are available to those who pass a Georgia ALC Medication Aide Training Program. The examination is a computer-based standardized written test and must be taken either at the assisted living facility under the direct supervision of the Georgia-licensed physician, registered nurse or pharmacist.

8. What computer requirements are needed for the CMA on-line examination?

Note that a supported browser must be used to take the CMA Online Competency Test. Supported browsers include Microsoft Internet Explorer (versions 7.0 and above), Google Chrome, Apple Safari (versions 4.0 and above) and Firefox 9 (versions 7.0 and above). If a supported browser isn't used, the nurse aide may have issues viewing the full test screen, which could result in not being able to finish the exam.

9. Must the aide pay the $25 fee before taking the computer-based written competency test?

No, not necessarily. An applicant will be permitted by the computer-based system to take the written competency test without have paid the $25 fee. The key to being able to take the written computer-based competency test is the attestation by the instructor on the website that the instructor has personally observed the applicant successfully complete the skills competency checklist. The current computer-based system is set-up to allow the applicant to print out a successful completion certificate after the written exam is passed. However, the applicant's name will not be certified as a medication aide on the registry until payment of the $25 fee is verified. Once the fee is verified, the CMA is placed in active status and the verification of certification by the assisted living community employer can be printed from the web portal.

10. How do I pay the $25 application fee to become a certified medication aide?

An applicant to become a certified medication aide can pay the $25 fee by check, money order or credit card. The applicant must have the Certified Nursing Assistant (CNA) identification number issued by the Georgia Nurse Aide Registry readily available to apply to become a Certified Medication Aide. If paying by check or money order, the applicant should fill out the payment coupon on line, print the form out and mail it in with his or her check or money order. If paying by credit card, click on this link <https://www.thepayplace.com/stateofgeorgia/hfrd/cma/billpreview.aspx> to go to the secure website where your credit card information will be accepted. You will need your CNA # for identification purposes when paying by credit card, just like when paying by check or money order. A separate credit card payment must be made for each applicant to ensure that the application can be properly tracked.

11. How do physicians, registered nurses and pharmacists become eligible to administer the Medication Aide Registry Program?

Interested Georgia licensed physicians, registered nurses and pharmacists may register with the Georgia Medication Aide Registry to administer the Georgia Medication Aide Training Program by completing a simple on-line application at www.mmis.georgia.gov. Registering one time via the web provides the nurse, physician or pharmacist with a username and password that can be used subsequently to validate that the nurse, physician or pharmacist administered the skills competency checklist to the aide.

12. I have developed a more detailed medication aide training program that I would like to use in place of the Department-approved medication aide training program. May I use my own program instead of the Department's?

Yes. The law requires you to use the Department-approved standardized skills checklist. However, you may certainly supplement the Department-approved medication aide training guide and checklist with your own training materials. The additional training materials you use must not conflict with the Department-approved standardized skills checklist and the Rules and Regulations for Assisted Living Communities, Chapter 111-8-63.

13. How must the clinical skills checklist be administered?

The instructor (a licensed physician, registered nurse or pharmacist) who has provided the medication aide training to the qualified applicant/student aide must personally observe the applicant/student complete without prompting the tasks listed on the Department's standardized skills checklist for medication administration. This personal observation must occur in a setting where a certified medication aide may be authorized to function for individuals who actually require the administration of their medications. (Under Georgia law, certified medication aides may only function in assisted living communities, i.e. personal care homes with 25 beds or more which are in the process of becoming licensed as assisted living communities.)

14. The skills competency checklist has observations for specialized medications, e.g. enema. What if there is no resident that the aide can administer an enema to at the time that the skills competency checklist is completed?

At the present time, the completion of the skills competency checklist on-line requires the entry of a date of completion for all tasks listed on the checklist. Ideally, it is expected that all tasks will be performed by the aides for residents requiring the particular tasks. In isolated instances, the community may not have a resident who requires the performance of a specialized task, such as the administration of an enema, at the time that the skills competency checklist is being administered. Where there is no resident available for the aide to perform such a specialized task, the instructor must have the aide correctly identify all tasks associated with the appropriate completion of the task to enter the completion date on the checklist. The licensed healthcare professional must then note in the comments section that the actual performance of the specialized task could not be observed. If, at a later date, a resident does require a CMA to administer an enema, the particular CMA would have to be determined competent on that particular specialized task by a licensed healthcare professional personally observing the aide perform the task before allowing the aide to perform the specialized task independently. The instructor would initial/update the hard copy of the skills checklist for that particular task for that particular CMA at that time in the comments section.

15. May an aide take the training class from one registered instructor (doctor, registered nurse, pharmacist) but have another doctor, registered nurse, pharmacist observe the completion of the skills competency checklist?

Yes, one licensed professional who has registered as an instructor could do the training. Another licensed professional who has also registered as an instructor could observe the aide complete the skills competency checklist (back in the community where the aide works) and enter the appropriate attestation statement regarding satisfactory completion of the skills competency checklist. A copy of the skills competency checklist must be retained in the aide's employment file.

16. Can I work in another healthcare field as a medication aide if I only passed the Assisted Living Community Medication Aide exam?

NO. A Georgia state certified medication aide can only work as a certified medication aide in an ALC.

17. How do I renew my Georgia Certified Medication Aide Registry listing?

Medication aides must renew their certification as medication aides every two years. To be "qualified" to continue to remain on the Certified Medication Aide Registry, the aide must be in good standing on the CMA Registry (no termination for cause relating to medications) and submit the following:

- A skills competency checklist satisfactorily completed by a Georgia licensed physician, registered nurse or pharmacist within the preceding eighteen (18) months;

- An application sent to the CMA registry demonstrating that the CMA has worked in an assisted living community within the past 24 months;
- Payment of the renewal fee of $25 either by credit card at <https://www.thepayplace.com/stateofgeorgia/hfrd/cma/billpreview.aspx> or a certified check or money order for $25.00 with a completed payment invoice (obtained from the HFRD website) sent to the Healthcare Facility Regulation Division, P.O Box 741328, Atlanta, Ga. 30374-1328.

Renewal is the responsibility of the medication aide. Anytime there is a 24-month period during which a medication aide does not produce evidence of satisfactory completion of a skills competency checklist before a Georgia licensed physician, registered nurse or pharmacist, then the aide must start the training program over as if never registered. The aide would need to complete a new ALC Medication Aide Training Program, complete the standardized skills competency checklist, pass the written standardized examination and pay the certification fee.

18. How does a certified medication aide lose “good standing” on the ALC Medication Aide Registry? What can the aide do if the aide doesn’t agree with the termination for cause?

A medication aide loses “good standing” on the ALC Medication Aide Registry by being separated (terminated, fired) by an assisted living community for causes relating to the poor performance of medication aide tasks. If a medication aide loses “good standing”, the medication aide will not be eligible to work as a certified medication aide in another assisted living community.

If a medication aide believes that he/she should not have been separated for cause for poor performance, then the aide must timely appeal the separation notice through the Department of Labor. If the Department of Labor finally upholds the separation for cause, then the medication aide will lose “good standing” on the registry. If the medication aide does not appeal the separation or the Department of Labor upholds the separation for cause, then the aide will lose “good standing “on the registry.

19. How long will it take to renew a medication aide listing?

Allow 30 business days from the date all the required information and documentation is uploaded to the on-line registry system.

20. Is there a medication aide registry fee?

Yes. It costs $25.00 to take the state written competency exam the first time and then $25.00 to renew the certified medication aide registry listing every two (2) years. An applicant to become a certified medication aide can pay the $25 fee by check, money order or credit card. The applicant must have the Certified Nursing Assistant (CNA) identification number issued by the Georgia Nurse Aide Registry readily available to apply to become a Certified Medication Aide. If paying by check or money order, the applicant should fill out the payment coupon on line, print the form out and mail it in with his or her check or money order. If paying by credit card, click on this link <https://www.thepayplace.com/stateofgeorgia/hfrd/cma/billpreview.aspx> to go to the secure website where your credit card information will be accepted. You will need your CNA # for identification purposes when paying by credit card, just like when paying by check or money order. A separate credit card payment must be made for each applicant to ensure that the application can be properly tracked.

21. Will a medication aide receive a certification card?

NO. All verification must be done via the website at www.mmis.georgia.gov. The medication aide and/or employer can print the verification from the web portal.

22. What is the initial listing date for an ALC Medication Aide?

The initial listing date is the date the medication aide passed the state standardized competency evaluation and all the necessary documentation has been submitted

23. How does the Georgia ALC Medication Aide Registry determine a listing expiration date?

The initial listing expiration date is twenty-four (24) months (two years) from the date the medication aide passes the competency evaluation.

After the initial listing, the expiration date could vary depending on when the medication aide submits the renewal documentation or if a new training program and state written competency examination is required.

26. Does an assisted living community provider have to train certified medication aides before applying to become licensed as an assisted living community?

In order to be licensed as an assisted living community, the assisted living community must have certified medication aides listed on the CNA/CMA registry on its staff. Whether the community trains the CMAs itself or just hires CMAs off the CNA/CMA registry is up to the community.

27. What in-service training hours are required for certified medication aides?

As employees of the assisted living community, certified medication aides are subject to the same training requirements as other employees. In their first year of employment, certified medication aides must receive 24 hours of training covering topics as outlined in the Rules for Assisted Living Communities, Chapter 111-8-63, especially Rule 111-8-63-.09(2) and (5). After the first year of employment, the certified medication aide must receive 16 hours of training each year.

28. How long are assisted living communities required to keep the hard copy skills checklists for certified medication aides on file in the facility?

Assisted living communities are required to keep personnel files on employees for three years following the employee's departure or discharge. The file must include evidence of skills competency determinations and recertifications. See Rule 111-8-63-.09(15)

29. Must the Assisted Living Community (ALC) provide documentation to the Georgia ALC Medication Aide Registry if the medication aide is terminated for cause relating to the performance of medication administration tasks?

Yes. The ALC must provide a copy of the Separation Notice to the Georgia ALC Medication Aide Registry if the certified medication aide is separated for cause related to the performance of duties as a certified medication aide. This Separation Notice must be filed with the Georgia ALC Medication Aide Registry after the time for appealing the termination for cause has expired or after the ALC receives a final administrative decision processed through the Department of Labor that the separation for cause has been upheld.

31. What state agency handles complaints against medication aides?

Complaints about medication aides are handled by the ALC in which they work, as any other employee of the ALC. If a resident or family member has concerns about the quality of care being provided in the ALC, then the resident or family member may file a complaint against the ALC with the Healthcare Facility Regulation Division, Department of Community Health by calling 404-657-5726.
